As a result of the incident the train was delayed two or three hours, but no serious delay occurred to general traffic.

War Chemists All Dream of Achieving a Perfect Power.

To achieve a perfect power is the dream of every war chemist of today, writes William George in the Technical World Magazine, for upon this uncertain stuff does the destiny of nations depend, in spite of The Hague conferences and the amiable platitudes of peace envoys. Great Britain has her cordite and lyddite. France puts her trust in poison-reeking melinite; Japan has her Shimonoose powder. In short, every war office has its own formula, but all are based on "nitro-compound" like gun-cotton. This is a high explosive, almost entirely smokeless, and enormously more powerful than ordinary gunpowder, long since relegated to the limbo of other days, just as gas has been superseded by electric light in the more peaceful walks of life.

Unfortunately the compound cannot be relied upon. The absolute requisite is stability—the insuring that the powder will endure without change any heat or climatic variation. An unstable explosive—the terror of every warship afloat, which stocks tons of it—looks like any other in the laboratory, and will shoot as well as the best, provided it is used before it has time to burn itself up. The trouble is that no chemist on earth knows when spontaneous combustion will take place through decomposition with the powder itself. Hence many terrible disasters of recent years in all navies.

FIVE DRUNKS IN POLICE COURT

ALSO A NUMBER OF VAGRANTS AND TRESPASSERS.

Five Dollars Extracted From the Pockets of Those Who Could Pay and Others Sent to Jail.

In police court this morning Jane Doe, the colored damsel who pleaded not guilty to drunkenness Wednesday and managed to secure her release by depositing bail to the amount of $5, forfeited the same by not appearing in court.

J. H. Chandler, charged with disturbing the peace Wednesday and whose case was continued until today, he having pleaded not guilty, forfeited bail to the amount of $5.00.

George Wilson forfeited $5.00 bail for not appearing to answer to the charge of drunkenness.

N. P. Young, charged with vagrancy, and who had been held for investigation, forfeited $10.00 bail by not appearing in court.

David Hass was arranged on the charge of drunkenness, having been arrested at Union depot in an intoxicated condition. He pleaded guilty and drew the usual $5.00 or five days.

Joseph Baker pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness and drew $5 or 5 days.

Frank Marganz and Thomas Deeds were arraigned on the charge of trespass, preferred by Watchman Shumaker of the Southern Pacific. They pleaded guilty in each case and were given fines of $5.00 or five days each. The men who leave portions of their clothing in a certain room at the freight station over night, have complained of late that things were often missing. A watch was put over the place and as Marganz and Deeds were discovered yesterday with their coats and shoes removed indulging in a quiet siesta, they were arrested for trespassing, no attempt being made to connect them with any of the thefts. The boys stated that they meant no wrong in taking advantage of a warm place for a "snooze."

TOLD OF A MEAN FAIRER.

Gift Mare Eating His Inherited Grass Aroused Him.

A leading official in the Young Men's Christian association of New York said the other day of the late Morris K. Jesup:

"Mr. Jesup's charity was even broader than his wealth. Naturally, then, he hated parsimony. I never saw him indulgent save when some instance of parsimony would crop up."

"Once he told us here of a particularly mean trick that had been played upon him by a multimillionaire. He said that the man had inherited his wealth from a miser."

"The farmer's cousin died in the 60s, and the old man attended the reading of the will, for he had hopes."

"And, sure enough, in one of the later codicils a certain 50-acre field was left him."

"As the bequest was read out the farmer sat in his chair, rubbed his hands and smiled delightedly about the room."

"But the lawyer, reading on, made known that the very good gray mare then grazing in said field was bequeathed to a nephew."

"At this news the farmer clucked his lips in rage and raged excitedly."

"Then she's eatin' my grass!"—New York Times.

His Work.

"A good, hearty meal will help me at my work, ma'am," said the wanderer, tapping at the kitchen door.

"What is your work?" demanded the kind housewife.

"Lookin' for work, ma'am," said Weary, politely.

"I suppose I should give you a job?" asked the lady.

"I couldn't take it, ma'am," said Weary, with a pathetic smile.

"It would interfere with my work!"—Harper's Weekly.

Pitiful.

One of the most pitiful things in the world is a man who thinks every body with whom he has dealings is trying to cheat him.

THIS FELLOW WAS IN BAD COMPANY

RESULTING IN HIS GOING TO JAIL FOR 30 DAYS.

Fred Richards Admitted He Would Not Compromise Shoe Thieves—Officers Condemned Him.

The daily police court included a number of drunks today, a vagrant or two and several forfeitures for petty crimes. An alleged friend of a crook was also investigated at some length and given a goodly sentence more or less on suspicion. Fred Richards was the name given by the latter, and he was arraigned on the charge of vagrancy. The defendant pleaded not guilty, asserting that he had over $5 with him at that moment.

Officers Burke and Chambers and Detective Pender were called upon for their opinion of Richards and they gave him rather a bad name. Officer Burke stated that Richards was a friend of the shoe thieves who confessed to the Pingree burglary and stated that he considered him a fence and go-between for thieves. Officer Chambers stated that Richards "hung out" at the saloons and that they had traced his record and whereabouts since November 3rd. Detective Pender stated that the man had denied all acquaintance with the above-named men, but had stated that he had been referred to by them.

Richards was asked to tell his story. He stated that he had been in town only 22 hours before he was arrested.

He said he happened to get mixed up with the men referred to while in Salt Lake and was arrested with them before they were brought back to Ogden for trial. He said that was all the local officers could have against him.

The court questioned him regarding his employment. At the past several times he had worked "off and on" in Montana for the last 20 years, and had also worked in Washington, Idaho, Nevada and Utah. He admitted that he had been in Ogden several times in the past three or four years in an effort to "quit drinking." The court finally sentenced him to 30 days on the rock pile on general principles.

Fish Story from England.

"Alfred Sommerlad, musical director of the Devonshire park theater, Eastbourne, and Edgar Bateman, the song writer, out fishing caught an edible crab," says an English periodical.

"They tossed it back into the water. At that moment an accidental kick sent the tin bait box after the crab. There was one fragment of bait adhering to the hook and this was lowered into the sea and the anglers left the rod for a time. When they returned they found their basket, which they had left empty, full to overflowing with fine flounders, soles, rock whiting and plaice. The explanation was soon forthcoming. Painfully making its way up the fishing line came the creature whose life had been spared, bearing in its nippers a fine young conger eel, which it placed with the other fish on the basket. Then it dropped back into the water. Apparently the grateful crab, knowing that he had caused the bait to be lost, had deposited 15½ pounds of live fish in the creel as a thank offering for its life being spared."

Toxin of Baldness.

A crystalline body that he calls trichotoxin is regarded by Dr. Delos L. Parker as an active agent in producing baldness. It is carried in the lungs, and it can be detected in the exhaled air. The fact that females who breathe more fully—are less affected with baldness than males is cited as evidence supporting the theory. It is concluded that persons who are losing their hair should practice breathing exercises, and the investigation seems to have shown further that turpentine is superior to the usual remedies as a local application.

Danger in Continuous Crops.

The growth of a number of successive crops of the same plant has been lately found not only to exhaust the soil for that plant, but to develop an active poison for it. Steam distillation of a wheat-sick soil yielded a crystalline substance that is toxic to wheat, and from a soil exhausted for cowpeas a crystalline substance was obtained that is toxic to cowpeas but not to wheat.

CRIMINALS IN DISTRICT COURT

SIX OF THEM PLEADED GUILTY TO CHARGES.

They Included the Three Men Who Burglarized the Pingree Wholesale Shoe House.

Sheriff Wilson and his deputies escorted six criminals into the district court this morning for formal arraignment at the bar of justice and each of the group pleaded guilty to the complaint read by the clerk. The court announced that he would pass sentence on the bunch Monday morning.

John Thomas, Joseph Collins and Frank Wilson admitted burglarizing Pingree Bros. store and appropriating "clothes to the value of $60."

August Shroder, charged with entering the Jefferson avenue residence of A. D. Young and extracting therefrom a gold watch of the value of $25, announced his guilt of burglary in the third degree.

Fred Kirk and Walter Davis, youths of tender years, admitted having committed burglary in the third degree by entering a caboose in the Southern Pacific yards and carrying off valuables belonging to railroad men, and are now tremblingly awaiting punishment for the same.

P. F. Geiger, charged with failing to provide for his family, will be arraigned in court Monday morning.

Andrew Lorenzo Montgomery, charged with a statutory offense in company with Ruby Stanford, will also be arraigned on Monday.

The first complaint filed against Ralph Dean, charged him with attempted robbery, was formally dismissed in court this morning. Dean subsequently pleaded to a second complaint of straight robbery and was sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years some time ago.

Queer Fijian Plant.

There is nothing under the sun quite so quaint, so weird and witchlike as the pandanus prairies of Fiji. The pandanus, or screw plant, as it is called, is a most grotesque specimen of the vegetable kingdom even at the best and in the early stages of its growth. In its very young days it is of an extraordinary scrawlike shape, and looks as though some kind of hand had taken hold of its long, swordlike leaves and twisted them round and round. Later it straightens out a bit, and from it grow a number of tall wooden stilts. Its foliage is simple, a number of drooping, ragged tufts for all the world like mop, and very mournful looking. Among these mop hang the fruit, in shape like a pineapple, made up of hard red and yellow kernels, woody and fibrous, and quite unattractive from a European's point of view.

New Chinese Army.

The Rev. Ng Poon Chow, the Chinese editor, who addressed the Inter-denominational Missionary conference in Calvary church last night, aroused the risibilities of his audience by a well meant comment on the new army which his country is now developing. "China," said the learned Oriental, "is raising a standing army of one million men."

After a pause, in which he allowed his auditors to grasp the extent of his statement, he added with an inimitable Mongolian lisp:

"China has never had a standing army. It has always been either a running army or a sitting army."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Preferred Ruggles.

The late Bishop Potter had a keen sense of humor, and was a great story teller. At dinners and at gatherings where he and Joseph H. Choate found themselves together was sure to be some excellent for the others present.

One of the best stories ever attributed to Bishop Potter, and which he never denied publicly, related to the visit of a certain Mrs. Ruggles to an art gallery where she saw a copy of the Apollo Belvedere. Surveying it carefully and silently on every side, Mrs. Ruggles remarked in measured tones, according to the bishop: "Well, if that's the Apollo Belvedere, give me Ruggles."

CHIEF IS ON WITNESS STAND

AT THE MCGUIRE-GOFF HEARING IN POLICE COURT.

Mrs. Loveless Again Called as a Witness—Police Judge Refuses to Grant a Motion to Dismiss.

The preliminary hearing of McGuire, Bramlett and Garrett, charged with robbing Frank Goff, was continued at noon today, several more witnesses being examined.

Mrs. Loveless, who cared for the rooms above the Apex saloon at the time of the alleged robbery, was called again to the stand and questioned regarding various incidents in relation to Goff's presence in the place.

Following her release from the stand, Attorney Maginnis made a motion for dismissal, claiming that the evidence in the case was not of sufficient weight to call for the defendants being bound over for trial. He stated that the Garrett had not been involved in the matter by the evidence introduced, but was reminded by acting District Attorney Harris that that gentleman had been quite deeply involved by the testimony, it having been testified that he had helped to carry Goff up the back stairs and had been present on several occasions referred to by witnesses. Attorney Maginnis then sought to have Mr. Bramlett dismissed on similar grounds he claimed in the case of Garrett.

The court remarked that men had not only been convicted of murder upon circumstantial evidence, but had often given their lives as a result of such evidence; therefore, he thought there were quite sufficient grounds for ordering the defendants to be bound over.

Attorney Maginnis then called Chief Browning to the stand and questioned him regarding the investigations which had been made. He sought to find what Goff had told the police about his experiences while in Salt Lake, but was told by the chief that the Salt Lake part of Goff's life, previous to his coming to Ogden, was of little consequence compared to what had happened since he came to Ogden, and that it was chiefly with the latter that the local police had to do. Chief Browning told of Goff's recital of his troubles and alleged robbery at the Apex saloon, and remarked that the old gentleman's mind seemed to be very clear indeed on what had occurred to him. Mr. Browning also stated that the defendants had at first denied everything in the way of knowledge of Goff or his business, as far as selling him whiskey was concerned, but that they had later admitted that they had, as facts developed in the case, the defendants had apparently become more active in recollecting events.

Jos. Fleming testified that "Goff came into the saloon with only his shirt and pants on and called for a drink. He was barefooted and said: 'Hello, Bulger! Don't make so much noise when you come in.' He said, 'Good morning,' and took his drink of whiskey and went back up stairs. He came in several times during the same day, in the same attire and took drinks of whiskey at the bar. Once Goff came in and asked the man at the bar if he (Goff) had left any money with him or his watch. Upon being told that he had not, Goff went back up stairs. He was under the influence of liquor most of the time that I saw him about the place."

Fleming admitted that he had been arrested on numerous occasions since his coming to Ogden, drunkenness being the usual charge, although he was once tried for striking a negro over the head with a revolver.

After considerable questioning, Fleming was excused and the case ordered continued.

He Understood.

During a financial flurry a German farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told that the bank was not paying out money, but was using cashier's checks. He could not understand this, and insisted on money. The officers took him in hand, one at a time, with little effect. Finally the president tried his hand, and after a long and minute explanation, some intelligence of the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind. Finally the president said: "You understand now fully how it is, Hans, don't you?" "Yes," said Hans, "I think I do. It's like this, ain't it? Ven my baby wakes up at night and wants milk, I gif him a milk ticket."

Smallest Birds the Bravest.

Birds fearless are the humming birds. So unafraid are these charming creatures that they readily will enter open windows of houses if they see the flowers within. They even have been known to visit the artificial flowers on a woman's hat when she was speaking of their taking sugar from between a person's lips. In a room they become confused and, being frail, are apt to injure themselves by striking against objects. It is of no use to try to keep them in captivity unless possibly it were in a greenhouse, where there were plenty of flowers, for no artificial flower ever has been found which will nourish them. Yet even in a greenhouse they probably would kill themselves by flying against the glass.

Subversion of an Honor.

An extraordinary commission has been created in Paris to investigate the affairs of the Order of the Legion of Honor, created by Napoleon as a signal mark of merit for distinguished service rendered to the state. This commission, of its founder has been gradually subverted and the cross has been bestowed for rather ordinary causes, frequently political.
